You should read this Pricing Supplement together with Freddie Mac's Global Debt Facility Offering Circular, dated July 22, 2008 (the "Offering Circular"), and all documents that are incorporated by reference in the Offering Circular, which contain important detailed information about the Medium-Term Notes and Freddie Mac. See "Additional Information" in the Offering Circular. Capitalized terms used in this Pricing Supplement have the meanings we gave them in the Offering Circular, unless we specify otherwise.

The Medium-Term Notes offered pursuant to this Pricing Supplement are complex and highly structured debt securities that may not pay a significant amount of interest for extended periods of time. The Medium-Term Notes are not a suitable investment for individuals seeking a steady stream of income

The Medium-Term Notes may not be suitable investments for you. You should not purchase the Medium-Term Notes unless you understand and are able to bear the yield, market, liquidity and other possible risks associated with the Medium-Term Notes. You should read and evaluate the discussion of risk factors (especially those risk factors that may be particularly relevant to this security) that appears in the Offering Circular under "Risk Factors" before purchasing any of the Medium-Term Notes.

The Medium-Term Notes, including any interest or return of discount on the Medium-Term Notes, are not guaranteed by and are not debts or obligations of the United States or any federal agency or instrumentality other than Freddie Mac.

Any discussion of tax issues set forth in this Pricing Supplement and the related Offering Circular was written to support the promotion and marketing of the transactions described in this Pricing Supplement. Such discussion was not intended or written to be used, and it cannot be used, by any person for the purpose of avoiding any tax penalties that may be imposed on such person. Each investor should seek advice based on its particular circumstances from an independent tax advisor.

RISK FACTORS:

An investment in the Medium-Term Notes entails certain risks not associated with an investment in conventional fixed rate debt securities. See “Risk Factors” generally and “Various Factors Could Adversely Affect the Trading Value and Yield of Your Debt Securities” in the Offering Circular. The interest rate of the Medium-Term Notes will be equal to LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity, subject to the “Interest Rate” provisions above. Investors should consider the risk that the variable interest rate on the Medium-Term Notes may be less than that payable on a conventional fixed rate debt security issued by Freddie Mac at the same time. Because the Medium-Term Notes may not pay a significant amount of interest for extended periods of time, the Medium-Term Notes are not a suitable investment for individuals seeking a steady stream of income.

The secondary market for, and the market value of, the Medium-Term Notes will be affected by a number of factors independent of the creditworthiness of Freddie Mac, including the level and direction of interest rates, the variable rate of interest payable on the Medium-Term Notes, the anticipated level and potential volatility of LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity, the method of calculating LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity, the time remaining to the maturity of the Medium-Term Notes, the aggregate principal amount of the Medium-Term Notes and the availability of comparable instruments. The level of LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity depends on a number of interrelated factors, including economic, financial and political events, over which Freddie Mac has no control. The following table, showing the level of LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity in effect for the Hypothetical Determination Dates listed below, illustrates the variability of that rate:

Historical Levels of 3-Month LIBOR

Hypothetical Determination Date	3-Month LIBOR Percentage
1/25/2007	5.36000
4/25/2007	5.35500
7/25/2007	5.36000
10/25/2007	5.01000
1/25/2008	3.30625
4/25/2008	2.91250
7/25/2008	2.79000

The historical experience of LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity should not be taken as an indication of the future performance of LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity during the term of the Medium-Term Notes. Fluctuations in the level of LIBOR for the Index Currency at the Index Maturity make the Medium-Term Notes interest rates difficult to predict and can result in actual interest rates to investors that are lower than anticipated. In addition, historical interest rates are not necessarily indicative of future interest rates. Fluctuations in interest rates and interest rate trends that have occurred in the past are not necessarily indicative of fluctuations that may occur in the future, which may be wider or narrower than those that have occurred historically.

CERTAIN UNITED STATES FEDERAL TAX CONSEQUENCES

The Medium-Term Notes are "Short-Term Debt Obligations." See "Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences - U.S. Owners - Debt Obligations With a Term of One Year or Less" in the Offering Circular.

For a discussion of the principal U.S. federal income tax consequences of the ownership and disposition of the Medium-Term Notes described in this Pricing Supplement (the "New Medium Term Notes"), Owners should read the following summary together with the sections entitled "Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences-U.S. Owners" and "-Non-U.S. Owners" in the accompanying Offering Circular.

Deemed Debt Exchange Between Certain Holders and Freddie Mac

If an Owner purchasing the New Medium Term Notes from Freddie Mac had previously held our debt securities issued on (i) December 12, 2007, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X6TC0, (ii) January 2, 2008, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X6XQ4, (iii) March 4, 2008, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X64M5, (iv) April 30, 2008, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X7NU4, (v) May 1, 2008, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X7LK8, (vi) May 21, 2008, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X7RK2, (vii) June 5, 2008, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X7WJ9, or (viii) September 3, 2008, and having the CUSIP Number 3128X7W26 (each an "Old Medium Term Note" and, collectively, the "Old Medium Term Notes") and such Old Medium Term Notes had been repurchased by Freddie Mac in a manner that was conditioned (implicitly or explicitly) upon such Owner's purchase of the New Medium Term Notes, all or a portion of the repurchase and associated purchase may be treated as a "deemed exchange" for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

We intend to treat the deemed exchange as resulting in a significant modification of the terms of the Old Medium Term Notes such that a deemed exchange of an Old Medium Term Note for a New Medium Term Note will constitute an exchange for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Based on their terms, the New Medium Term Notes should not be treated as securities for purposes of the recapitalization provisions. Thus, a deemed exchange of an Old Medium Term Note for a New Medium Term Note should not qualify as a recapitalization and thus, should result in a taxable exchange, and any portion of the New Medium Term Notes that is received in the deemed exchange should be subject to the special tax consequences described in the Offering Circular under "Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences-U.S. Owners-Deemed Debt Exchange Between Certain Holders and Freddie Mac-Deemed Exchange Treated as a Significant Modification-Deemed Exchange Not Qualifying as a Recapitalization." See "Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences-U.S. Owners-Deemed Debt Exchange Between Certain Holders and Freddie Mac." The law is not entirely clear, however, and holders may wish to consult their own tax advisors as to whether the New Medium Term Notes qualify as securities and the likelihood of recognizing gain or loss on the deemed exchange.

The U.S. federal tax consequences associated with any portion of the New Medium Term Notes not received in the deemed exchange generally will be as described in the Offering Circular under "Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences-U.S. Owners" and "-Non-U.S. Owners."

We intend to treat a deemed exchange of an Old Medium Term Note for a New Medium Term Note as a significant modification that does not qualify as a recapitalization for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and Owners who receive New Medium Term Notes for Old Medium Term Notes agree to be bound to such treatment. Owners participating in a deemed exchange are urged to consult their own tax advisors with respect to the U.S. federal tax consequences to them of participating in such exchange based upon their particular circumstances, including any alternative characterizations of the deemed exchange.
