CERTAIN UNITED STATES FEDERAL TAX CONSEQUENCES

For a discussion of the principal U.S. federal income tax consequences of the ownership and disposition of the Medium-Term Notes described in this Pricing Supplement (the “New Medium Term Notes”), Owners should read the following summary together with the sections entitled “Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences—U.S. Owners” and “—Non-U.S. Owners” in the accompanying Offering Circular.

Deemed Debt Exchange Between Certain Holders and Freddie Mac

If an Owner purchasing the New Medium Term Notes from Freddie Mac had previously held our debt securities issued on April 2, 2004 and having the CUSIP Number 3128X23A1 (the “Old Medium Term Notes”) and such Old Medium Term Notes had been repurchased by Freddie Mac in a manner that was conditioned (implicitly or explicitly) upon such Owner’s purchase of the New Medium Term Notes, all or a portion of the repurchase and associated purchase may be treated as a “deemed exchange” for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

We intend to treat the deemed exchange as resulting in a significant modification of the terms of the Old Medium Term Notes such that a deemed exchange of an Old Medium Term Note for a New Medium Term Note will constitute an exchange for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Based on their terms, we believe that both the Old Medium Term Notes and the New Medium Term Notes should be treated as securities for purposes of the recapitalization provisions. Thus, a deemed exchange of an Old Medium Term Note for a New Medium Term Note should qualify as a recapitalization, and any portion of the New Medium Term Notes that is received in the deemed exchange should be subject to the special tax consequences described in the Offering Circular under “Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences—U.S. Owners—Deemed Debt Exchange Between Certain Holders and Freddie Mac—Deemed Exchange Treated as a Significant Modification—Deemed Exchange Qualifying as a Recapitalization.” See “Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences—U.S. Owners—Deemed Debt Exchange Between Certain Holders and Freddie Mac” in the Offering Circular. The law is not entirely clear, however, and holders may wish to consult their own tax advisors as to whether the New Medium Term Notes qualify as securities and the likelihood of recognizing gain or loss on the deemed exchange.

The U.S. federal tax consequences associated with any portion of the New Medium Term Notes not received in the deemed exchange generally will be as described in the Offering Circular under “Certain United States Federal Tax Consequences—U.S. Owners” and “—Non-U.S. Owners.”

We intend to treat a deemed exchange of an Old Medium Term Note for a New Medium Term Note as a significant modification that qualifies as a recapitalization for U.S. federal income tax purposes, and Owners who receive New Medium Term Notes for Old Medium Term Notes agree to be bound to such treatment. Owners participating in a deemed exchange are urged to consult their own tax advisors with respect to the U.S. federal tax consequences to them of participating in such exchange based upon their particular circumstances, including any alternative characterizations of the deemed exchange.
